ROMANTIC ESCAPE PACKAGE

Bozburun is a small seaside town with own municipality in Marmaris district, in southwestern Turkey. The town's name is derived from its surroundings of gray mountains ('Boz' means gray) and the way the land points into the sea, like a nose ('burun' means nose).

Bozburun is rooted in the sea. The picturesque fishing village is renowned for its boatbuilding, particularly of "gulet" boats, that are constructed in the small-scale shipyards and workshops that line the shoreline. Fresh fish is brought in daily by local fishermen and in the early hours, by the shore, you can watch them haul their catch-of-the-day down the harbour to local restaurants. The atmosphere is laid-back and utterly tranquil. From their gardens, locals grow their own vegetables and keep chickens, and in many ways Bozburun as a whole gives off the impression that the 21st hasn't arrived.
